DEMERIT SYSTEM

Discipline is one of the hallmarks of the United States Marine Corps and also the foundation of education. One of the major components of the mission of the Marine Corps Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps is to strengthen character by instilling habits of self-discipline. In this context we have designated a Demerit System that is designed to evaluate and motivate cadets to practice self-discipline. This system will also provide a tool in which to counsel cadets in an effort to correct and mentor them to become not just better cadets but also better students. Cadets who accumulate demerits will receive a discipline grade at the end of each of these weeks. This discipline grade will carry the weight of a test grade and will reflect points lost for disciplinary infractions committed during class or any reported infractions from other teachers and administrators who never hesitate to email me on negative student behavior. A preponderance of demerits will be awarded due to violations of basic school policies such as talking in class, sleeping in class, disrupting the class, and cell phone violations. Some disciplinary violations are unique to MCJROTC such as improper behavior in formation, and unwillingness to maintain the position of attention. This listing is not all inclusive but just a sampling. To quote General George Washington in a letter to his captains of the Virginia Regiments:

“Discipline is the soul of an army. It makes small numbers formidable; procures success to the weak and esteem to all.”

Our goal is not to train an army but to promote strong character traits in our students. As Gen. Washington indicated, discipline “makes small numbers formidable.” For Young people who doubt their abilities, self-discipline will demonstrate that they are capable of more than they realize. In reference to the latter part of Gen. Washington’s quote, a measure of well-deserved self-esteem is a great encourager.

I have read and understand the Demerit System as stated in this document.
